Affected simplicity is refined imposture.

The sunshine of young souls is love and good humor.

In the opinion of the world marriage ends all. The truth is precisely the reverse—it begins all.

Pleasure and improvement should go hand-in-hand if we wish to make the most of our life upon earth.

Endeavor to be cool and steady upon all occasions; the advantages of such a steady calmness are innumerable.

'Tis an ill thing to be ashamed of one's poverty, but much worse not to make use of lawful means to avoid it.

It is often said that second thoughts are best. So they are in matters of Truth needs no policies, nor strategies, nor licensings to make her victorious. Those are the shifts and defences of error.

The longer we live the more we must endure the elementary existence

It is no disgrace to be unable to do everything, but to undertake or pretend to do what you are not made for is not only shameful, but exceedingly troublesome and vexatious.

Look not mournfully into the past—it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present—it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear and a manly heart.

Time is a stream in which there is no mooring the barques of life, because there is no casting anchor in it. It is

It was the policy of the good old gentleman to make his children feel that home was the happiest place in the world ; and I value this delicious home feeling as one of the choicest gifts a parent can bestow.

Patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest, too. Patience lies at the root of all pleasures as well as of all powers. Hope herself ceases to be happiness when impatience accompanies her.

Satire is a sort of glass, wherein beholders generally discover every body's faults.

The philosopher and lover of man has much harm to say of trade, but the historian will see that trade was the principle of liberty that took shape.

Colors artfully spread upon canvases may entertain the eye, but not affect the heart; and she who takes no care to add to the natural graces of her person any excellent qualities may be allowed of all eyes, and yet be despised by all hearts.

We are reproached with forgetting others; we forget ourselves a thousand times more. We remember what we hear, see, and read, often accurately; not so with what we felt—that is faint and uncertain in its record. Memory is the least faithful of all.

Occupation is a necessity of the young. They love to be busy about something, however trifling, and if not directed to some useful employment will soon engage in something that is evil, thus verifying the old proverb that idleness is the mother of vice.

Nothing appears so absurd as placing our happiness in the opinion others entertain of our employments, not in our own sense of them. The fear of being thought vulgar is the moral hydrophobia of the day; our weaknesses cost us a thousand three score years.

The man who regards himself as a machine calculated to do a certain amount of work in the course of the year, with no more rest than is given to a bit of mechanism, is sure to reap the fruit of his folly. It may come in great weariness of life, or in

People are always talking about originality; but what do they mean? As soon as we are born the world begins to work upon us; and this goes on to the end. And after all what can we really

And, alas, alas, what can we call our own except energy, strength and will? If we could give an account of all that we owe to great predecessors and contemporaries, there would be but a small balance in our favor.

A woman with pleasant smile, clear skin, bright eye, generous expression, elastic step, hearty-hand shake and courteous welcome. Such a woman is not the victim of debility, languor, or dyspepsia. She has overcome these pests by using Brown's Iron Bitters, the world's great tonic. Miss Mattie Benson, South Parsonfield, Me., says,

In married life there should be sympathy—companionship. The husband and wife ought to be friends and comrades, without a thought of getting the best of each other. They should join hands at the altar with the idea of being made one. There can be no true love where the thought of mastery enters the mind.—Danville Tribune.
